

CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.....	9
INTRODUCTION	11
Stigma, symbolic boundaries and the everyday politics of belonging	12
The Brother of the Other: Immigrants from Belarus, Ukraine and Russia in the Czech Republic	15
Negotiation of stigma and symbolic boundaries in narrative interviews	18
Outline of the book	23
CHAPTER 1 CONTEXTUALIZING POST-1989 MIGRATION FROM BELARUS, RUSSIA AND UKRAINE TO THE CZECH REPUBLIC.....	25
The Czech Republic as an immigration country?.....	28
The context of reception for immigrants in the Czech Republic: Scrutinizing migration research	32
The formation of research on migration in the Czech Republic.....	33
Migration as a constitutive element of post-1989 changes: Towards a natural order of migration and diversity	36
Framing the “integration of migrants”: From (unnatural) homogeneity to (risky) diversity.....	38

Immigration from Belarus, Russia and Ukraine to the Czech Republic	42
Research on migration from Belarus, Ukraine and Russia to the Czech Republic.....	44
Exploring migration trajectories from Belarus, Ukraine and Russia to Czechia.....	48
CHAPTER 2
NEGOTIATING IMMIGRANT STIGMA: PERFORMING ALTERNATIVE VISIBILITIES.....	59
Experiencing migrancy: Undesirable visibility	61
Representation of the immigration context in the narrative interviews	65
Other migrants, migrants' others: Socialization into the hierarchies of difference in the Czech immigration context.....	69
Reducing undesirable visibility: Passing as the more privileged... ..	74
Performing alternative visibilities	78
The good workers: Work ethic, skills and legality	79
"We don't live in closed communities": Openness and adaptability.....	86
CHAPTER 3
"THE RETURN OF THE RUSSIANS": NEGOTIATING THE CULTURAL TRAUMA OF "1968"	107
From the Brother to the Other? "Russians" and the politics of belonging in Czechia after 1989	110
The cultural trauma of "1968"	113
On becoming perpetrators: the "perpetrators" meet the "victims"	116

Whose guilt?	119
Responses to the stigma of the perpetrators:
Differentiation and individualization	121
Time heals all wounds?	125
Rejection of the stigma of the perpetrators	127
Final reflection: Immigration from the former Soviet Union to post-1989 Czech Republic, the cultural trauma of “1968” and a postcolonial perspective on migration	129
CONCLUSION	133
APPENDIX A: RESEARCH METHODOLOGY – DATA COLLECTION AND ANALYSIS	139
Selection of the research participants	139
Data collection and analysis	141
Brief characterization of the research participants	143
APPENDIX B: SEVERAL MEANS TO AVOID INCONVENIENCE ABROAD	149
FIGURES AND TABLES	151
BIBLIOGRAPHY	152
INDEX	165